

PHIL 204 : Philosophy and Film

Credits: 3

Class Hours: 3 lecture

Description: In this course, students will watch a selection of movies and analyze them in light of the various philosophical ideas that they explore. Primary attention will be devoted to identifying, considering, and evaluating these philosophical ideas, the ways they are artistically presented in film, and their connections to both traditional philosophical problems and each student's personal world and life view.

Semester Offered: Fall, Spring, Summer

Designation:

Diversification: Humanities – DH